Key Insights & Recommendations

OVERTIME IS THE #1 ATTRITION DRIVER

Employees working overtime show 30.5% attrition vs 10.4% for those who don't-- nearly 3 times higher. The sales department, with the highest attrition (20.6%), likely reflects a heavy overtime culture.

Recommendation: Introduce overtime monitoring and flexible work policies targeting sales teams

EARLY CAREER EMPLOYEES FLEE FASTEST

36% Attrition among Early Career Employees Vs 9% for Senior Staff. Job Level 1 Confirm at 26.3%. The biggest talent drain happens in the first 2-3 years of employment.

Recommendation: Structured mentorship programs and clear career progression paths for junior hires.

MANAGER INSTABILITY DRIVES DEPARTURE

Employees who left averaged only 2.85 years with their manager vs 4.37% years for those who stayed - a 35% difference. Shorter manager relationships correlate directly with higher attrition.

Recommendation: Reduce manager rotation and introduce Manager effectiveness scoring

COMPENSATION GAP IS SIGNIFICANT

Employees who left earned an average. 4.8k vs 6.8k for those who stayed - a 29% income gap. Low pay combined with high overtime creates an unsustainable work contract for employees.

Recommendation: Salary benchmarking, especially for the Sales and HR departments

POOR WORK-LIFE BALANCE = HIGH RISK

Employees rating work-life balance as poor show 31.3% attrition - double the company average of 16.1%. This compounds with overtime and income dissatisfaction to create a perfect storm.

Recommendation: Wellbeing programs and flexible hours targeting employees rating balance as poor.
